

I'll tell you a Greek tale, the myth of Europe.

Her name is Greek. Comes from ευρύς και ώψ (the one that has big eyes).

Europa, Ευρώπη was a young and beautiful lady. Europa was the epitome of feminine beauty on Earth.

Zeus, Δίας was the chief of Gods, strong as thunder. He was a powerful man.

Zeus once saw her on the seashore. He was so captivated by her beauty. He fell in love with her and developed a strong desire to possess her. He took the form of a white bull and approached her. Europa looked at the extraordinary animal curiously and dared to touch him. Later, she was somehow motivated to climb on his back. Then, Zeus ran to the sea and carried her all the way from Phoenicia to here, to the island of Crete. Here, he regained his human form and mated with her. They got married, they had three sons and live happily ever after.

Europe gave her name to a whole continent.

Europe saw her story depicted on a coin of its continent.
