

Wise people speak because they have something to say. Foolish people speak because they have to say something.

It is better to be insane in the company of other people rather than be sensible and lonely.

The only true wisdom is in knowing that you know nothing.